New Comedy Opens At Studio Mar. 31

The John Patrick comedy "Everybody Loves Opal" will open Mar. 21 at the Studio Theatre-Restaurant in Carmel for a run of seven weekends.

The title character, an eccentric female junk collector, maintains undaunted faith in the good intentions of the human race, even when severely tested by Gloria, Brad and Sol, a trio of petty con artists whom she invites to live with her. They repay her kindness by plotting a series of farcical schemes to do away with her for her insurance money.

Opal, whose charmed life survives each bungled attempt, refuses to have her eyes opened to her would-be assassins who one by one succumb to her persistent good nature.

Patrick, who wrote "The Hasty Heart" and "The Curious Savage," as well as adapting "The Teahouse of The August Moon" for the stage, knows how to concoct these ingredients into a plot that combines suspense with uproarious laughter.

Eileen Meckart and Stubby Kay starred in the original Broadway production which was directed by Cyril Ritchard. The comedy has scored wide success in summer stock and community theatre since then.

"Everybody Loves Opal" is under the direction of Dave Kirk. Reservations for Friday, Saturday and Sunday performances may be made at 624-1661 or 624-2321.

Last week the Pine Cone ran an article by Gunnar Norberg about the Carmel City Council's action in the case of the Carmel Galleries.

We have a letter from the Carmel Art Association, asking us to explain to Pine Cone readers that they are not the Carmel Galleries, and their business license is still in good standing.

Don't confuse the Carmel Art Association, on Dolores, with the Carmel Galleries, subject of the Council's action, located on Ocean.

Short Story

On pages C and D of this issue, the Pine Cone presents a short story, "Have You Seen the Rainbow?" a fantasy by Pearl B. Harwood. Miss Harwood is the author of 11 children's books, and was a frequent visitor to Carmel while she was living in Northern California. She is now a resident of Escondido.

Summer School and Workshops Approved By Carmel Board

Permission to plan an elementary summer school program for about 180 pupils within a $6000 budget was granted by the Carmel School Board last night.

Benefits to teachers and training of aides were noted. Clayton B. Neill Jr. wondered why they couldn't do the same thing at the secondary level, not standard course offerings or standard ways of teaching, but experimental courses or new methods.

Authorization was granted to plan two two-week workshops for the purpose of developing individual instruction programs in all schools. The workshops would be held two weeks after the end of school and two weeks prior to the opening of school, and would require between $17,000 and $20,000 for proper execution.

Teachers would be working with their principals on selection of materials and strategies.

Taylor hoped to employ someone who knows the full range of materials. He was hopeful that a third of the staff might participate. "This is a high priority item for the welfare of the district," he said. "We should invest money in change."

The five-year-lease agreement with Carmel Valley pool under which the Carmel School District agrees to take over the maintenance obligations was discussed.

Swimming fees will be raised slightly at the high school pool, to help defray Carmel Valley pool expenses.

Swimming lessons, including diving and life saving, previously free of charge, will be given for $4 a year. Season tickets will remain the same.

Before reaching a decision it was proposed that Neill and Steven Sassoon look over the pool and try to estimate possible expenses in case the heating or plumbing prove faulty.

A request by Taylor for the appointment of a vocational counselor at the high school was granted. Taylor cited the need to reduce the present load of 520 students for one counselor.

Opera Workshop

The Monterey Peninsula Opera Workshop will present a benefit concert for the St. Barbaras Church in Marina on Sunday afternoon, Mar. 23, beginning at 3:30.

The concert, which is sponsored by St. Johns Chapel in Monterey, will be presented at the Canterbury Woods Auditorium in Pacific Grove.

Renk, Chapman Sworn In As Cultural Commission Members

By Gunnar Norberg

Two new members of the Carmel Cultural Commission were sworn in at last Monday night's meeting. They were Lois Renk, local realtor, and Dorothy Green Chapman, longtime resident and civic worker. Mrs. Renk was appointed to the Commission last month by Mayor Barney Laiolo, to occupy a long unfilled vacancy on the seven-member unit, and Mrs. Chapman was named last week to replace Donald Teague, who had resigned.

Other members of the Cultural Commission are: D. Paul Medalie, chairman; Dr. James E. Gilman, James Pruitt, Patricia Faul and Ashton Stanley.

Established two years ago, the Cultural Commission is the result of a merger of two existing groups — the Sunset Commission and the Carmel Arts Commission. The Sunset Commission was a temporary body, formed in 1965 to manage the Sunset Center property, while the Carmel Arts Commission was set up in 1958 to act in matters concerning the creative and performing arts.

Five Sunset Commissioners and two Arts Commissioners became the original members of the Cultural Commission in 1967. It was one of those two Arts Commissioners, Donald Teague, who resigned last week from the Cultural Commission, and to whom the City Council directed that a letter of appreciation be sent. (Incidentally there is still resident here, the only lifetime honorary member of the original Carmel Arts Commission—Geza St. Galy).

Following the seating of the new members — Mrs. Renk and Mrs. Chapman — at Monday night's meeting, Commissioner Ashton Stanley, who heads the Commission's fund-raising committee, reported that gifts at $50 each had been pledged to cover cost of 162 of the 714 new seats which are to be installed at Sunset Auditorium early next fall. Donors' plaques are to be put on seats financed by these pledges, and Stanley hoped new interest in this effort would develop.

The Commission adjourned to convene next Wednesday afternoon at Sunset Center, where it will act as the host group for the city Planning Commission which has scheduled its next meeting there. Both commissions will consider future plans for the city's Sunset property.

THE VERY LAST TIME — Harold Wilson tell Red Cross Nurse Mrs. Francis Scott that he's OK, that his blood pressure is right, that he's type O, that he has his doctor's permission to give blood, and the Red Cross nurse has OK'd the deal. Wilson is pushing 60, the maximum age for blood donors, and needed this last pint to put him in the "One Full Gallon" list of donors. The Bloodmobile visited Carmel last Friday, and will come again in June.

Bloodmobile Falls Short of Goal, But 84 Show Up for Donations

Although the visit of the Bloodmobile to the Carmel-by-the-Sea chapter of the American Red Cross failed to reach its goal of 100 donors last week, 84 were registered of whom only two had to be deferred.

Registering for his final appearance as a blood donor, Harold Wilson regretfully announced that because of his impending 60th birthday he would no longer be eligible to give blood.

"Come in and say 'hello,' anyway," the volunteer worker told him. It is a safe bet that he will, for the atmosphere of friendly sociability is not the least part of a visit to the Bloodmobile.

In the four hours of the session at the Red Cross headquarters, the volunteers run into many human interest stories. Del Wer-muth, member of the Carmel police department, received his pin as an eight-gallon donor.

A veteran of the Korean War, he himself received many transfusions after being severely wounded.

Now, happy to be on the giving rather than the receiving end, he shows up as one of the bloodmobile regulars. Also on the eight-gallon list is Jim Kelsey, one of the first in line at each visit.

Joan Chapman, whose farm on the Coast Route has been isolated and damaged by the flood, had a difficult time getting into Carmel to donate blood, but managed to arrive in time. As a former nurse, she knows the importance of this service.

The volunteers working with a young first time donor were saddened to learn that he was giving blood for his 11-month-old daughter Cathy who is in the hospital.

As usual, some of the men stationed at the Naval Facility at Big Sur were among the donors, one of them, Gilbert Mumma, being a first time donor. Other first time donors were Patricia Thompson of Marina and Leslie Wyble of Salinas.

One of the physicians on duty at the Red Cross during the bloodmobile visit, Dr. David Gornel, came early to donate blood before he took over the duty from Dr. R. A. Kocher.

The next visit of the bloodmobile to Carmel will be on Friday, June 6.

In addition to the lecture on composition, members are reminded to bring four slides for the PSA nature competition. The meeting will be in Brey Hall, Carmel High School, at 8 p.m. Guests are welcome.

Carmel Anti-Poverty Election Meet

Letter To Editor

Editor,
Carmel Pine Cone

Most all Carmelians, if not most of the Council, are aware that their sewage is handled by the Carmel Sanitary District, an entity which is a natural development for the disposal of sewage from a drainage area far larger than the incorporated boundaries of Carmel itself.

That the Carmel Sanitary District has the legal right to accept sewage from another drainage area serving another drainage district is something new to most of us.

Such indeed may be the case, however unreasonable or however unseen it may have been at an earlier time.

If it is indeed so, and Pebble Beach Sanitary District has a right to the use of Carmel streets, we think that it should have rights ONLY on specifications laid down by the Street Department or Engineering Dept. of Carmel, for any, ANY opening and closing of trenching on street right of way.

Since shrinkage after back-fill, if anything is more common than uncommon, and that such shrinkage presents both a nuisance and traffic danger for years to come, we think that it would be wise of our City Council to publicly inform us that under suitable bond from contractor, all back-fill in this particular sewage enterprise will be required to meet the standards of compaction and or puddling that obtain in the finest municipal engineering practice anywhere.

It would seem to this writer that the Contractors presentation of the need for speed in the execution of the work, with the temptation for slipshod accomplishment, make the foregoing provisions doubly important.

Demos To Open New Headquarters

The Monterey County Democratic Central Committee will open its first permanent headquarters in Monterey County.

At 1 p.m. on Saturday, Mar. 15, at 2317 Fremont, the ribbon will be cut, and the Democratic Party of Monterey County will have official headquarters for all party workers, party officials, and visitors.

The headquarters is to be "manned" by Democratic women under the direction of Mrs. John Robotti, president of the Carmel Democratic Women's Club, and also member of the Monterey County Central Committee, and Mrs. Charles Davis, also a member of the Monterey County Central Committee, and vice president of the Carmel Democratic Women's Club.

The public is invited to the opening of the Democratic Headquarters, and also invited to stay for conversation and refreshments.

Exhibit Changes

The Carmel Museum of Art is presenting the last three days of the exhibition "The Paintings of Theodore Wores."

Beginning on Tuesday Mar. 18 the Museum will present its spring exhibition, "New Acquisitions and early Monterey Peninsula Graphic Art." The Museum is open to the public Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m. - 4 p.m.

The Carmel Museum of Art

able to better serve the needs of the Monterey Peninsula, it is necessary that the local council be truly representative of all the communities on the Peninsula.

Therefore, target area elections have been called in several communities so that directors may be elected from Carmel, Pacific Grove, Big Sur, and Marina, as well as Monterey and Seaside.

The Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of Carmel has arranged with Bud Allen of the La Playa Hotel to hold this election meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday, Mar. 13, at the La Playa.

It is hoped that many will express their concern for the welfare of the poor in our midst by attending this meeting. A no-host supper, beginning at 6:30 p.m., will precede the meeting.

Stephen Ross, vice-mayor of Seaside, will outline the plans and problems of the local Anti-Poverty Office.

It is stressed that the council is not to be made up of only poor people but must enjoy the guidance and consultation of all concerned citizens to make its work meaningful and its programs effective. All local residents who are interested in helping combat poverty are urged to attend this election meeting.

T. S. Eliot Play Opens At MPC

T. S. Eliot's play, "Murder in the Cathedral," the dramatic story of the slaying of Thomas Becket, will be staged at Monterey Peninsula College Mar. 20-22 and 26-29, 8:30 each evening in the MPC Little Theater on campus.

Directed by Ross Durfee, the production will feature settings designed by Ruth Allan and constructed by members of a class in theater production technology, with costumes by Jean Miller and lighting by Joe Salomone.

The student cast is headed by Dean Funk as Archbishop Becket. Other cast members are Norm Fagan as First Priest; Garry Craig as Second Priest; Judy Grossman, Linda Morgan, Colista Leone, Lucy Hook, Kay Walter and Cathy Pooler as the women of Canterbury; Dave Hoskins, Steve Smith, Rich Holmes and Alex Gossman as knights; Tony Padilla, Bill Meneke, Lucien Quinten and Dale Diggs as "tempters"; and Bruce Leonard as a messenger.

"Murder in the Cathedral" was originally presented in 1935 at the Canterbury Festival and was subsequently produced professionally both in England and the United States. Action of the play is centered around the events that led to the assassination of Becket by agents of King Henry II. Much of the dramatic material is relevant to the problems of contemporary life—which, Durfee says, "accounts in part for the current interest in Eliot's dramatic works."

Tickets will be sold at the theater door.

ROTARIANS

Carmel Rotarians heard John P. Scroggs, manager of the Jamesburg Communication Satellite Earth Station, far up in Carmel Valley, talk about the three satellites that provide worldwide television and telephone communication, for which the Earth Station is a relay point.

Next week, Marcia Hovick, director of the Children's Experimental Theater of Carmel will describe the purpose, aims and projects of this unique group.

ART DONATION — Carmel artist and sculptor Emile Norman removes a lithograph of a bird from the wall of his gallery for Mrs. Robert Menist of Carmel, as his contribution to the Mar. 23 auction to benefit the Beacon House in Pacific Grove. The auction will be held at the Holiday Inn at 7 p.m. Beacon House is a facility for rehabilitation of alcoholics and the achievement of lasting sobriety.

Two Productions of 'Lion In Winter'

There's an uncanny feeling about seeing "The Lion in Winter" at Cinema 70 after seeing the stage play at the Circle Theater a couple of months ago.

True, Katherine Hepburn and Peter O'Toole are magnificent in the parts of Eleanor of Aquitaine and Henry, and surely deserving of the acclaim they are receiving and the Academy Award nominations.

The sweep of the film production, the flexibility, the perfection of shooting and reshooting result in a slick presentation that is almost overwhelming.

But you can't help but compare the difference in the stage play at the Circle, a theater-in-the-round, with its warm intimacy of being able to reach out and touch the players, with the majesty of the screen production.

The performances of Gertrude Chapell as Eleanor and Roy Baxter as King Henry were as polished and moving in the milieu of the Circle Theater as Hepburn and O'Toole are in the film.

Both productions contain those rare elements that make a dramatic piece well worth seeing again and again.

Lyceum Sponsors Guitarist

Guitarist Peter Evans will appear in concert at the Circle Theater, Carmel, at 7:45 p.m., Tuesday, Mar. 15.

The program will consist of both flamenco and classical guitar selections.

Evans studied flamenco guitar with the gypsies in Spain, and has toured with Sergio Mendez and Brazil '66 for two years.

The concert is a benefit for the Lyceum of the Monterey Peninsula and ticket information may be obtained by calling 624-2403.

The Lyceum, a non-profit organization, provides special classes, seminars, and workshops for students of high academic ability.

Market Comments

Dow Theory Business and Stock Market Forecasts letter of March 7th. mentions that buying remains in order for the possible higher prices this spring and summer. Depressed issues such as Boeing could be good for selection.

From Golf Pro To Irish Imports

Dick Ferguson is a top pro in both sports and fashion. A native of Ireland, where he first began playing professional golf, Ferguson continued teaching and playing as a pro in the United States until 1961. It was then that he and his wife, Ruth Ann, who had met at one of the country clubs where he was head pro, decided to open an import shop in Carmel called, Ferguson of Dublin, a women's clothing store that would specialize only in Irish imports.

Ferguson still manages to play some golf but finds himself deeply involved in the clothing business. This is the fourth year that Dick and Ruth have had their shop at their present location on Ocean Ave., and before that they were located in the Mall on San Carlos.

Ferguson's features all types of wools, silks and tweeds, all hand-woven, hand-loomed or hand-knit.

They also offer fashions by such noted Irish designers as Jimmy Hourihan, William and Brendan O'Reilly of Emor, Gail of Gailwear and Perry of Dublin.

The Irish spring styles are ranging from spring weight Irish wool, and solid or printed linen to lush silks, in a rainbow of colors. There are also finely tailored coats and suits in checks, plaids, tweeds and solid toned wool.

Ireland finest imports for those who like top fashion quality are available at Ferguson of Dublin.

TAIL TANGLE—One of the primary frustrations at Sunday's YMCA kite fly was tail-tangling. The larger kites going up seemed to have an affinity for smaller kites, and only because tomahawks were forbidden on the field were scalpings averted. Here the Kiowa kite has entangled a smaller triangle job, and owners, helpers and interested spectators assist in the untangling.

Y-Indian Guide Kite Kontest

Nearly 300 YMCA Y-Indian Guide members and families assembled Sunday at Carmel Middle School for their annual kite fly.

Each Big and Little Brave launched his home-made kite into the brisk wind as the judging began at 2 p.m. Numerous categories made it possible for most everyone to receive some sort of recognition — largest kite, smallest kite, best theme kite, funniest kite, best tribal kite, and highest flying box and triangle kite.

Kites ranged from one half inch long to eight feet, and dotted the sky for more than two hours.

Bach Festival Program Selected

Programs and soloists for the 32nd season of the Carmel Bach Festival have been selected by Sandor Salgo, its music director and conductor for the 14th year.

The Festival will begin on

Yale Russ Chorus

The Yale Russian Chorus, one of the nation's best known choral groups will sing at Sunset Auditorium on Monday, Mar. 24, at 8:15. The 30 voice ensemble is sponsored by the Yale Club of Palo Alto-Monterey, net proceeds to go to the club scholarship fund to send area students to Yale.

The Yale Russian Chorus was organized at the university in the spring of 1954 by Denis Mickiewicz, a Latvian-born student then enrolled in the Yale School of Music. Today, the group consists of some thirty undergraduates, graduate students, and faculty members from throughout the university. Included in the chorus's repertory are Russian liturgical, folk and military music, American spiritual and songs from most parts of both Eastern and Western Europe.

Since 1959 the ensemble has appeared in the Soviet Union and other parts of Eastern Europe, engaging in a program of unofficial cultural exchange. The group often sings informally in parks or public squares to entertain city people. In addition to its visits to Eastern Europe, the chorus also has made two extended concert tours of Western European universities and capitals.

In 1962, the chorus won first prize at the International Choral Festival at Lille, France, in competition with 60 choral groups.

For the Carmel concert contact the Central Box Office. Phone 624-6739.

July 18 and end on July 27.

Highlights of the program will be Purcell's "The Fairy Queen"; Bach's "The Passion" complete, in German; and works by Johann Christoph Bach, Haydn, Mozart, Monteverdi, and Le Sage de Richee.

Past subscribers are looking forward to hearing again sopranos Carole Bogard and Marie Gibson, tenor James Schwabacher and bass Thomas Paul, none of whom were here last year.

The beloved flute player Louise di Tullio will also be back after an absence which made her a mother.

The great Hungarian pianist, Istvan Nadas, will return to play a Mozart Concerto.

Other soloists will be announced later.

Programs and season or single ticket information may be secured by writing the Carmel Bach Festival, Box 503, Carmel, 93921.

Ruth Mirikitani Piano Recital

The Carmel Foundation will present pianist Ruth Mirikitani in recital Wednesday, Mar. 19, 2:30 p.m., at the Town House, Lincoln near 8th.

As part of its series of live musical performances, Carmel Foundation offers the program to the public as well as its membership.

Miss Mirikitani will perform works by Bach, Beethoven, and Chopin. She was born in Hawaii and has studied in Japan and Massachusetts. She is now a resident of Monterey Peninsula studying with Wade Parks.

Following the program, girls of Girl Scout Troop 2069 of Carmel will serve tea.

Lewenthal Concert

Pianistic fireworks are in store for concertgoers who attend the Raymond Lewenthal concert on Friday, Mar. 21 at Sunset Auditorium.

The concert is the fourth in the series of five presented during the current season by the Carmel Music Society.

The American-born musician has been doing his own thing in the world of music today. What he has been doing is to bring back neglected works of yesteryear's musicians, particularly those of Franz Liszt. In 1965 he was praised to the skies by critics attending his Liszt Cycle of three concerts in New York's Town Hall.

In 1964, he had returned to the New York concert stage after an absence of 13 years, during which time he had been residing in Europe and in South America, playing and recording.

A few tickets remain for the forthcoming concert which will be presented at Sunset Auditorium. The Carmel Music Society's box office is at the Friar Tuck book store, Mission near 6th in Carmel, 624-2085.

NEW MPC AWARD

The Monterey Peninsula College chapter of the California School Employees Association has announced the establishment of a second scholarship award to be granted to an MPC student annually, according to Gene Noble, president.

The chapter has given one student a year a $50 check for the past two years, Noble said. Starting this year, two students with "B" grade point averages or better will receive $50 each, with their eligibility to be determined by the college's scholarship committee.

Festival Retains Isenberger for President

Melvin J. Isenberger, assistant superintendent for business services of the Monterey Peninsula School District, has been re-elected president of the Board of Directors of the Monterey Jazz Festival. Isenberger has served as president for the past 10 years, and was one of the original directors of the non-profit event who helped found it in 1958.

In a separate action, the board also announced that it was assigning $10,000 to its scholarship committee and instructed it to prepare recommendations for possible Monterey Jazz Festival grants to worthy Monterey County endeavors.

In the past 11 years, the Festival has donated more than $45,000 to scholarships and other various non-profit activities. Last month the board reported an excess of receipts over expenditures from the 11th annual Monterey Jazz Festival held last year, of $13,800.

Other officers elected at the festival board meeting this week were:

Lawrence Bemis, retired U. S. Navy Commander, now Monterey business executive, who was elected vice president. Bemis was named to the board in 1966 and last year served as its secretary.

Frank Wilkinson, Monterey business executive, who was re-elected treasurer.

James Costello, of Carmel, Monterey newspaper executive, was elected secretary. He has served on the board since 1961.

Jimmy Lyons is general manager of the Monterey Jazz Festival.

Symphony to Play at MPC and Sunset

College and high school students as well as families with children will have an unusual opportunity to hear the 70-piece Monterey County Symphony Orchestra present its fourth concert of the season when they play two programs, on Mar. 23 at Monterey Peninsula College, and on Mar. 25 at Sunset Auditorium in Carmel.

Selections from the works of three of Germany's most important mid-19th century composers will be featured including Wagner's prelude to "Tristan und Isolde," Schumann's hauntingly beautiful "Piano Concerto in A Minor," and Richard Strauss's symphonic poem "Death and Transfiguration."

Wagner was so entranced by the medieval legend of Tristan, a knight of the Round Table, that he wrote an entire opera around the story. The prelude, according to Conductor Haymo Taeuber, is well adapted to concert performance.

The piano concerto will spotlight the outstanding talents of Russian pianist Dimitri Bashkirev, who is making his second triumphant concert tour of the United States.

The tremendously popular "Bolero" by French composer Maurice Ravel will provide the finale. He wrote the piece in 1928, and predicted little success for the work which has won wide acceptance.

The special Sunday concert will be held at 7:30 p.m. in MPC's new gymnasium-auditorium. The earlier concert hour has been set to encourage family attendance.

A blue-ribbon committee comprised of members of the cultural and academic communities has begun a vigorous ticket sale for the Monterey concert. Among other members are W. Webster Downer and Mrs. Georgia von Richter, both of Carmel.

Additional information concerning the two concerts and tickets may be obtained by telephoning the Symphony Office at 624-4125.

Czech Quartet in MPC Appearance

The Smetana Quartet from Czechoslovakia, "named in honor of the country's best-known composer, will appear in concert at Monterey Peninsula College Saturday, Mar. 15.

The concert will begin at 8:30 p.m. in the MPC music hall. Tickets are available at the college community services office and may be obtained in person or by mail.

Founded in 1943 when the artists were still students at the Conservatory of Music in Prague, the quartet gave its first public concert under the present name in 1945.

In recognition of its "unusual excellence and refinement," the quartet was invited to affiliate with the Czech Philharmonic Orchestra as a chamber music ensemble.

After World War II, the Smetana Quartet was the first Czech group to re-establish the fame of its country's chamber music performance in the great music centers of Europe. Since then, performances in more than 30 countries have brought international recognition.

Members of the group are Jiri Novak, violinist; Lubomir Kosticky, violinist; Milan Skampa, violinist; and Antonik Kohout, cellist.

The Mar. 15 concert is one of a series which has been offered to the public by the college for the past several years through the efforts of Miss Angie Machado of Carmel, now an MPC professor emeritus.

'Update' Will Aid College Women

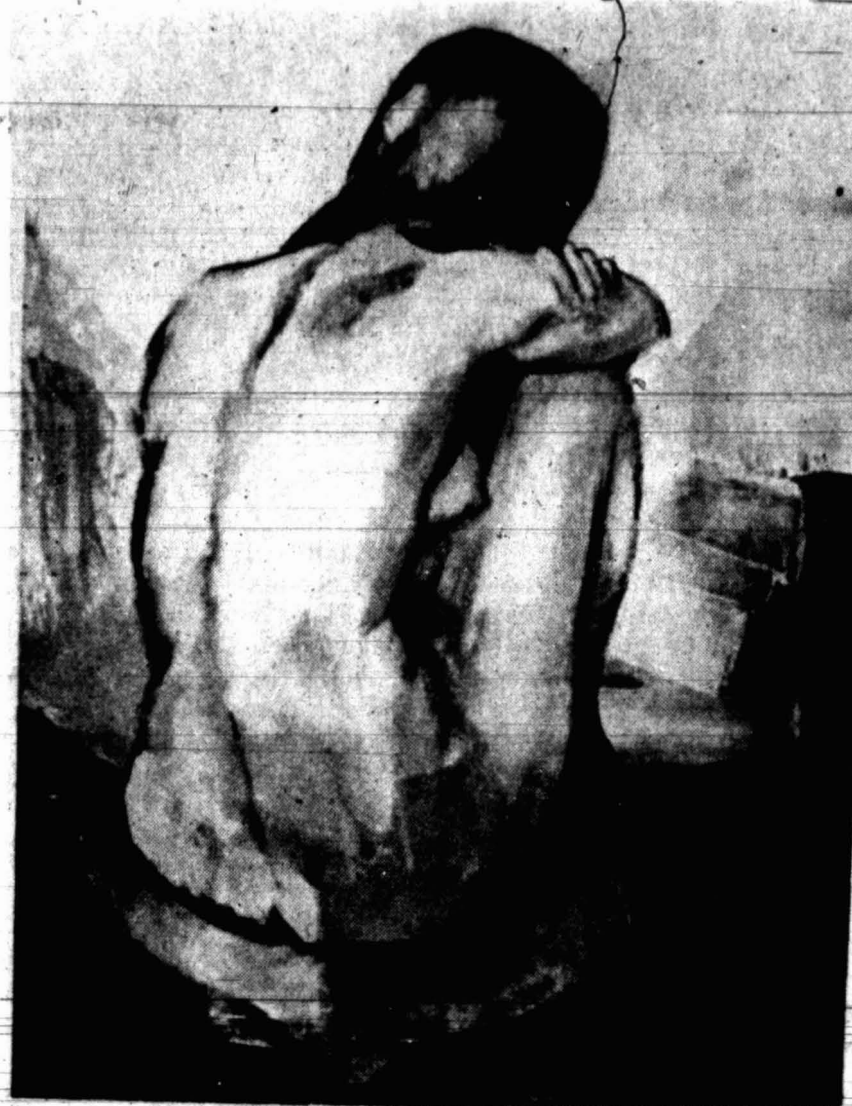

"Operation Update," a series of four Thursday morning lectures on modern developments in education for "the woman who, having been out of school for some time, yearns to know what's being taught in the colleges," will open Mar. 20 at Monterey Peninsula College.

Co-sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Branch of the American Association of University Women, the series will feature MPC instructors in what has been called a "capsule college refresher course."

Jascha Veissi, the internationally famed solo and concert violinist who now instructs an evening class in chamber music at MPC and is "artist-in-residence" at the college, will start his Mar. 20 lecture on music at 10 a.m. in the lecture-forum on campus.

A similar pattern will be followed Mar. 27 by Dr. Lowell Adams, ecologist; Apr. 10 by Dr. Frank Teti of the Naval Postgraduate School, political scientist and Apr. 17 by Dr. Ronald Menmuir, MPC philosophy instructor.

Parking areas will be designated and there will be a nursery for small children of mothers attending the lectures. No tickets will be required for admission.

"Nude" by Barbara West.

Variety at Carmel Art Association

By Louise Cook

The Beardsley Room at the Carmel Art Association is the setting for a one-man show of paintings by Barbara West, whose biographical background appeared last week in the Pine Cone.

The collection consists mainly of nudes and still lifes.

Her nude studies are of slim, youthful figures, always posed gracefully and naturally and always in excellent taste.

She uses a muted palette of harmonious, pleasing colors, and the composition of her still life paintings is well thought out, thus achieving style and balance.

The Main Gallery runs the gamut of art conceptions, giving each visitor something of the type of work he most admires.

"Still Life with French Phone" is done in Joe Feuerburn's familiar rich and vibrant colors. Helen Dooley suggests "Calla Lillies" in wildly free brush strokes and strong, pure colors.

In contrast, Eugene Baker's black and orange "Warrior" is a meticulously painted "etching in oil."

Robert Davey's whimsical and amusing "Young Rhino" has a friendly look. Two of Davey's familiar birds add to the composition.

Two boats reflected in still water by William Timmins, seem suspended in a sea of blue, while Linford Donovan's easily identified style and palette are seen in a pensive study of an "Indian Girl."

A gay carnival scene in pinks and mauves is a surprising departure from Louise Cardiero Boyer's usually more abstract conceptions.

Joe Ataide entitles his somber death mask, garbed in blue, "Chrysiada."

The beautiful work of sculptress Beth Garcia is seen in an arrangement on driftwood of three silver woodpeckers whose heads are topped with carnelian.

Honor Carmelites

Bachelor's degrees and Dean's List honors were awarded to several Carmel students at the end of the Fall quarter.

Frank D. Faulkner, Jr., received his BA in chemistry at the University of California, Davis. From the U. of C., Riverside, Eugenie Karen Kodani earned her BA in political science.

Charles L. Anderson was named to the dean's list for the College of Engineering on the Davis campus. Criteria are completion of at least 12 units of work and a grade point average of 3.0 out of a possible 4.0.

Davis' College of Letters and Science dean's list included the names of Peter R. Dyer Jr. and Lawrence H. Thompson, their required grade point average being 3.3.

James B. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde J. Smith, was named to the dean's list at George Williams College, Downers Grove, Ill. A graduate student majoring in counseling, James was required to complete 10 graduate hours with a 3.5 grade point average.

TENNIS MATCH—At the Oakland Coliseum was attended by over two dozen enthusiastic members of the Beach Club recently. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lippman of Carmel Highlands, above, sitting behind Mrs. Dennis Van Dermeer, wife of the Berkeley tennis pro. Led by Don Hamilton, new tennis pro, "The Pebble Beach Tennis Express," chartered bus, carried its own singing bartender, Dick Muselman, who sang along with tennis playing guitarist June Kroeger of Carmel.

New Social Hostess At Del Monte Lodge

Taking over the duties as social hostess at Del Monte Lodge is Mrs. Edith Cox Clancy of Carmel.

As social hostess at the Lodge, overlooking the famous 18th fairway of the Pebble Beach Golf Links, Edie will be in charge of a wide range of women's activities.

Included will be organizing fashion shows, shopping sprees, teas and various social events held regularly at the Del Monte Lodge and the Beach and Tennis Club.

An avid tennis player, Edie was ticket chairman two years ago for the annual Celebrity Tennis Invitational, which is held on the Fourth of July holiday week-end at the Beach and Tennis Club.

Del Monte's new social hostess, who was named to the position by B. A. Coleman, general manager, is a sustaining member of the Junior League of the Monterey Peninsula and has been active in politics.

Simultaneous with Edie's appointment is the news that her brother, known to movie and television fans as Dick Sargent, will take over the role of Darrin in the TV series "Bewitched."

MPVS Garden Tour Committees Named

At the regular monthly meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Volunteer Services on Mar. 7th, Mrs. William F. Pratt, Garden Tour Chairman, announced the committees working on arrangements for the Spring Garden Tour to be held on May 12th, for the benefit of the Visiting Nurses Association. Mrs. Richard L. Arrangements are being made with the Beach and Tennis Club for a buffet lunch to be served around the pool on the day of the tour.

Tea will be served in the afternoon at one of the gardens on display; Mrs. S. Y. Cutler is general tea chairman, and Mrs. Joe L. Farrow will be in charge of the food. Tickets for the Tour are being prepared and will be available through the members of MPVS. Miss Edith A. Rivett is Ticket Chairman. Hostesses for the tour will be named by Miss Claire M. Kennedy, and properties will be handled by Mrs. Rolf L. Bolin. Traffic arrangements are being handled by Mrs. Charles Krasa and flower arrangements will be in the hands of Mrs. Wagner C. Haas.

Miss Marion Eley has been named as Mailing Chairman; Mrs. Minna Goodwin as Treasurer for the Tour; printing will be done under the direction of Mrs. J. B. Farrior and advertising will be in charge of Mrs. F. H. Watson, Jr., and Mrs. Viola Mills as co-chairmen. Publicity will be handled by Mrs. W. Egbert Schenck and Mrs. Robert R. Robertson. A descriptive brochure for the Tour is being prepared by Mrs. G. W. Hughes. Golden Wedding Anniversary Observed

Mr. and Mrs. George Vye, Carmel residents since 1924, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in grand style as befitted the occasion.

At the Carmel Valley home of Mr. and Mrs. John Dowdakin, a lovely luncheon with beautiful golden table decorations and fancy French fare had been prepared by the hostess. It was gay and light hearted although not without memories of friends who had attended their 25th anniversary in Carmel.

What a sunny Sunday (March 9) fete, lasting from midday until way beyond dusk. Champagne, gifts galore, flowers, cablegrams, telephone ringing constantly and friends coming from quite a distance to embrace and congratulate this exceedingly admired couple.

Next week "Party Plans" will carry a story about French Helene and British George whose life together has been filled with adventure and entente cordiale.

Woman's Club Fashion Show

A "Spring Tea" party dessert, followed by a fashion show modeled by club members, will be held on Mar. 17th at 1:30 by the Carmel Woman's Club at the clubhouse.

Fashions for the new season will be shown by Pernie's of Carmel. A cordial invitation to the public to attend the fashion show is extended by Miss Marion Eley, chairman, with whom reservations may be made by calling 624-8117.

Members of the club modeling will be: Mrs. Robert Bannister, Mrs. A. C. Bryans, Mrs. Allan Craig, Mrs. Fred Dorr, Mrs. Permella Roeber, Miss Marion Stevens, Mrs. Roy Vosseller and Mrs. Herbert W. Wagner. Arrangements for the fashion show have been under the direction of Mrs. Robert Pelton who will comment.

Mrs. I. Norman Downer, hospitality chairman, assisted by her committee will serve the dessert prior to the show. Flower arrangements will be by Mrs. Roy Vosseler.

Bridge and canasta may be played by those wishing to remain at the conclusion of the fashion show.

Wins $5000

Dr. Michael Zearott, who conducted the Hidden Valley Music Seminars Orchestra at Robert Louis Stevenson School last summer, recently won the Dmitri Mitropoulos competition in New York which awarded him $5000 and the opportunity to be assistant conductor of the New York Philharmonic.

He has also been offered the chance to become associate conductor of the Monte Carlo Orchestra at Monaco.

In either case he will be returning here next summer from Atlanta, Georgia where he is assistant conductor of the Atlantic Philharmonic; to be with the talented young people in Hidden Valley Music Seminars, according to Peter Mechel of RLS.

Buffet Supper

The fascinating home of Dorothy von Meier, with its carved woodwork and turquoise glass collection was the background for a delectable buffet supper last Saturday evening.

Guests were city officials and area planners and their wives. Talk centered around the ideas expressed at the day long planning conference at Asilomar that day.

The Monterey Peninsula does not do enough social planning for its people in the area of housing and transportation, keynote speaker Donald Hummel, former HUD official, was quoted as saying. The Hummels were to have been present, but were called back to San Francisco.

"Birth control pills should be sold over the counter like Band-Aids," Gordon O'Bannon, anthropology professor at Cabrillo College was quoted as saying during his talk on overpopulation.

This touched off conversation about how things are done in other places such as Sweden and Germany and South America, in the course of which Hugh Bayless disclosed that he was born in Chile, the son of a mining engineer.

European Tour for Credit

A European tour for credit, and an Aerospace Workshop are featured for Summer School at National College of Education, Evanston-Wilmette, Ill., in 1969. These are in addition to the full schedule of undergraduate and graduate courses in liberal arts and professional preparation for elementary school teachers.

Further information about the total National College program may be obtained from Mrs. Frank Born, Route 2, Carmel.

HOME SHOW '69 — was in the planning stage when committee members of the Children's Home Society met recently at a Beach Club luncheon. Mrs. Richard G. Murray (left) and Mrs. James E. Newmarch, both of Carmel, have key roles as general chairman and co-chairman. The home furnishings show will be held May 15-18 at the Fairgrounds, offering the public a view of 23 handsome rooms, the work of interior designers and firms on the Monterey Peninsula and in Salinas. A 3-day speakers' program will present creative ideas in decorating, gardening and cookery.

Brownells Attend Gold and Silver Ball

Dr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Brownell of Carmel attended the annual Gold, Silver and Ten Ball of the P & S Club held at the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco recently.

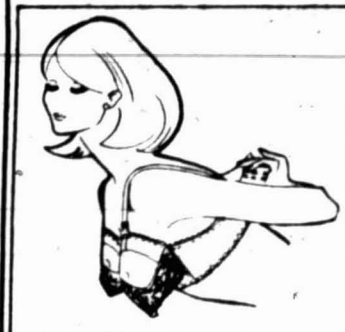

The P&S Club is made up of alumni and friends of the University of Pacific School of Dentistry (formerly the College of Physicians and Surgeons).

1. Unhook both the back of bra and the cups from the shoulder straps.

2. Straighten up, fasten hook and eye low on the back, below shoulder blade. Make sure bottom band is flat against rib cage and under bust tissue. Adjust shoulder strap for complete comfort and correct position. Apex at bust should be approximately half way between shoulder and elbow. Re-check both to make sure that it has maintained the correct position.

3. With cups down, lean forward once more, reach into opening of supporting triangle as far back as you can and bring as much of the breast tissue forward as possible. Do the same from all angles. Bring all tissues from rib cage and underarm into the supporting area (patented feature of bra will help keep this tissue in position).

4. As you straighten up, fasten cup to shoulder strap, allowing for fullness of bust to fill cup.

5. As you wear your FIGURETTE bra, you will see for yourself how comfortable it is... and so easy to wear!

Movie Review

The Detective — Frank Sinatra in a demanding role as a detective who loses his identity as a man to the police department. Lee Remick and newcomer Jacqueline Bisset co-star.

The Queens — Four vignettes involving four fictional "Queens," Savina, Armenia, Elena and Marta. Done in the Italian manner, the vignettes star Claudia Cardinale and Raquel Welch, among others.

30 Is A Dangerous Age, Cynthia — A wacky British comedy with Dudley Moore as a jazz pianist nearing 30 who is determined to compose a hit and get married before reaching that age.

The Boston Strangler — Henry Fonda is a coordinator, George Kennedy is the tenacious detective and Tony Curtis, complete with a putty nose, is the psychopathic killer.

The Sergeant — Sensitive portrayal of a gruff Army sergeant by Rod Steiger who returns to an Army post in France after WW II. Convincing dialogue and outstanding acting.

The Bank Dick and You Can't Cheat An Honest Man — We are currently in the midst of a W. C. Fields revival, and nothing, absolutely nothing, could be better for motion pictures. These two are completely timeless comedy, as funny as the day they were made.

Here We Go Round The Mulberry Bush — A delightful comedy about young bird-watchers in London. The birds are a group of luscious young ladies. Good rock music adds to the charm.

Le Biches — Dramatic conflict at St. Tropez in winter. Made in France, the stars are Jean Louis Trintignant, Stephane Audran and Jacqueline Sassard.

Romeo and Juliet — Franco Zeffirelli's production starring Leonard Whiting, 17, as Romeo and Olivia Hussey, 16, as Juliet. A sensitive and poetic picture shot in northern Italy where the tragedy actually occurred.

The Lion In Winter — Peter O'Toole and Katherine Hepburn turn in outstanding performances in this drama of Henry II and his queen. Great dialogue and a great film.

Charly — Experimental brain surgery changes a mentally retarded young man into a brilliant adult confronted with new and serious problems. Cliff Robertson, Claire Bloom.

Theatre Guide

When We Are Married — Typical British drawing room comedy laid in a small village at the turn of the century. The cast is excellent, the laughs frequent, the chuckles almost continuous. Fine stage fare at the Circle Theatre.

Under The Yum Yum Tree — Fast moving comedy about a flighty girl, her accommodating boy friend, her worldly-wise aunt and a landlord who epitomizes the wolf fraternity. Great stuff.

At the Studio Theatre-Restaurant. Final weekend.

PARTY PLANS . . .

by Phyllis Jervey

"How About Springing a Leg of Lamb?"

Can Spring be far behind? Let's forget rain and garden weeds. Instead why not think happily about a succulent roast leg of Spring lamb. Bronzed and breathing of herbs and the fragrance of red wine, we'll look forward to March ending like a lamb. And not roaring in like a lion. . . . (We can't cook lions).

This is the IN menu to lift drooping spirits and bored appetites. Fragrant roast of Spring lamb; browned potatoes; tender very green asparagus stalks; red dinner wine; golden daffodils (to admire) and for dessert Topsy Squire.

Country Spring Lamb

One leg of young lamb (6 to 7 lbs.); 1½ cups red dinner wine; 6 T. flour; 3 cups water; salt, pepper, fresh dill, slivered garlic. Serves 6 (with leftovers for curry?).

Cut deep slits along leg of lamb about 1 inch apart. Push sprigs of fresh dill and slivered garlic into these spaces. Roast in shallow open roasting pan at 350 F., figuring 30 minutes per pound.

After one hour baste with ¼ cup wine. Continue basting at 20 minute intervals, using ¼ cup wine each time until wine is used up and lamb is done to your taste. (Party Plans prefers very well done lamb, but still juley.) (Pine Cone editorial staff prefers lamb done just slightly on the rare side. Sorry, Phyllis.)

Asparagus Piquant

Two lbs. fresh asparagus; 4 slices diced bacon; fresh lemon juice and wine vinegar to taste; ½ cup soft bread crumbs; 3 T. butter. Serves 6.

Wash asparagus and break each stalk off as far down as it snaps easily. Cook, covered in small amount of boiling, salted water until just tender. Meanwhile broil bacon until crisp. Dice or break up and add with lemon juice and wine vinegar.

This is according to taste, but remember no bitterness. Brown crumbs in butter.

Pour sauce over hot asparagus and sprinkle with crumbs. Keep hot at table on electric server.

This delicate dessert is a flavor delight. For the forthcoming "lovely as Spring-time" finale to top off the leg of lamb, the dessert should be substantial as a cloud but an easy-made-ahead recipe.

Topsy Squire

One pkg. lady fingers (12); ½ cup raspberry jam; ½ cup white dinner wine; soft chilled custard; 1 cup whipping cream; ¼ cup slivered toasted almonds. Serves 6.

Split lady fingers; put together sandwich fashion with jam. Arrange in single layer in shallow dessert dish. Pour wine slowly and evenly over lady fingers. Chill several hours.

Pour the following custard over the above. Whip the cream, scatter almonds over this and pass separately. Serves 6.

Soft Custard

One and a half cups milk; 3 t. sugar; ¼ t. salt; 4 egg yolks, slightly beaten; ½ t. vanilla extract. Chill.

Scald milk; add sugar and salt; mix until sugar dissolves. Pour hot milk slowly over egg yolks. Cook and stir over hot water until mixture coats spoon. Stir in vanilla and chill. Serve in sherbet glasses with a dash of brandy.

The above recipes were sent to 'Party Plans' for exclusive use from Lucille Shearwood who writes "Straight from the Vine" for The Taylor Wine Company, Hammondsport, N. Y.

This was her message: "Dear Phyllis. Envy your Carmel weather. Best love from Frozen Fun City (N.Y.). . . . If they can plan Spring that far ahead, why can't we . . . with daffodils already."

Not to forget St. Patrick's Day we include this grand oldie

Real Irish Stew

Six large potatoes, peeled and cut into 1½ inch cubes; 6 large onions; sliced; 4 lbs. boneless lamb, in 1½ inch cubes; 1 cup water; salt and pepper to taste. Serves 6.

In heavy saucepan place a layer of potatoes and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Add a layer of onions, and season again. Place a layer of lamb cubes on top and season. Repeat until all ingredients are used. The top layer consists of potatoes only. Pour the water over and cover pot. Bring to slow boil and simmer gently until lamb is tender. More water might be needed. 'Party Plans' suggests including a bouillon cube to flavor the water. Also some crushed fresh or dehydrated mint.

Mar. 13, 1969

The Carmel Pine Cone-Cymbal 9

This is a very plain and simple Irish cottage-type stew. Of course, carrots, celery, turnips and green peas add color and flavor. These are cooked separately to add at the last moment, or else served as a side dish. But lamb is always "just boiled," not roasted or browned first, in a real Irish dish.

Fruited gingerbread seems to go nicely with the above. To speed up the process, buy gingerbread mix and add seedless raisins, blanched almonds, chopped, plus some mixed candied (chopped, to be sure) fruit peel. Bake according to packaged directions. Serve warm with Irish coffee and/or creme de menthe.

Now to the French way with lamb.

Navarin de France

Have your meatman cut a 6 lb. leg of lamb into 2 inch cubes, free from fat or gristle. Brown these in vegetable oil. Sprinkle them lightly with flour through a sieve. Add salt and pepper throughout. Put lamb into heavy, but attractive, all-purpose casserole. Add dry white wine to cover meat and a "bouquet garni," consisting of a small double-cheese-cloth bag filled with sweet basil, thyme, rosemary, mint, parsley, bay leaf, cut up shallot or green onion and carrot. Tie with long string to hang over edge of pot so it can be pulled out later.

Season the Navarin with garlic, celery and onion salt to taste, as it cooks, with more wine when it evaporates. Cool and refrigerate 24 hours. Remove any surface grease. Reheat slowly. Correct seasoning after removing the bouquet and serve very hot from casserole over fluffy white rice. "Avec des tranches de pain Francais" (French bread chunks) for the "dipping into juice."

Salut to Lamb!

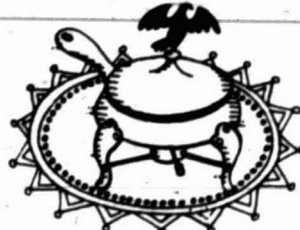

The above choice recipe is from Madeleine Dowdakin, talented and vivacious Parisienne wife of John Dowdakin, with the California Forestry Service, and Carmel Valley enthusiasts.

TRADEMARK — Think you recognize me, do you? You're almost right, but not quite. It was my grandfather, 11 generations removed, that posed for the original RCA-Victor ad. New Fishing Regs Anglers throughout the state were reminded today by the Department of Fish and Game that 1969 sport fishing regulations went into effect on March 1. The new regulations will remain in effect through February 28 of next year.

In the central coastal region of California, one of the most important changes is the reduction of the ocean sport salmon limit from three fish to two in ocean waters south of Tomales Point.

Christian Science Bible Lesson

"Will God indeed dwell on the earth? Behold, the heaven and heaven of heavens cannot contain thee; how much less this house that I have builded?" This verse from I Kings is part of a Bible Lesson-Sermon titled "Substance" to be read this Sunday in all Christian Science churches.

One of the selections to be read from the denominations textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy, is the following: "The everlasting I AM is not bounded nor compressed within the narrow limits of physical humanity, nor can He be understood aright through mortal concepts. The precise form of God must be of small importance in comparison with the sublime question, What is infinite Mind or divine Love?"

GIANT GIANT — Egil Larsen, right, with his guide and a monster salmon weighing 60.9 pounds landed on a Norwegian river in the fjord country near Bergen.

Norway Offers Skiing, Scenery and Super-Salmon as Attractions

It seems hard to believe that a country as popular with tourists as Norway can still have vast "undiscovered" areas of scenic beauty awaiting the vacationer, but it does, and the most amazing fact is that these practically unspoiled attractions are not in some remote, off-the-beaten-path place but are close by, within easy reach of bus or automobile.

This is only one of many surprises Norway has in store for visitors.

Telemark, the beautiful province in southern Norway, is a case in point. From a map, one might guess that this is surely where everyone goes, because it lies between Oslo, the Viking capital, and both Bergen and Stavanger, west coast ports and gateways to the fjords.

Telemark is closer to the rest of Scandinavia than many of Norway's better-known regions, and the map also shows mountains, glaciers, waterfalls, fjords, rivers, lakes and other features which should mark this as "Norway in a nutshell." Even the name rings a bell, but you know it from skiing, because this is the birthplace of the "Telemark turn" and the modern sport.

How is it, then, that Telemark is still classified as "undiscovered?" The answer is largely in Norway's fascinating mountain geography which, until now, has kept Telemark almost cloistered from the tourist world. Twisting mountain passes have kept the pace too slow for the modern motorist or bus rider, and from November to May the passes were closed by snow altogether. Trains don't touch much of Telemark, and while planes certainly fly over they can't provide a close look at its attractions, which include a rich folklore in a setting of centuries-old farms and stave churches.

The Norwegians have found the solution in an old philosophy with modern overtones: "If the mountain won't come to Mahomet, cut a tunnel through it." They have, in fact, cut six tunnels which bypass some scenic but obstructive roads, reduce driving time considerably and provide a weather-protected, all-year motor route between Oslo and Bergen. Now one can explore Telemark in varied tours of three days or more and without foregoing the other popular sights the tourist wants to see.

Northwest of Oslo, salmon country begins — some of the most fabulous and storied fishing rivers in the world, where 20-pounders are the rule, 30-pounders just slightly above average, and 60-pounders are not unknown.

The Alta, Laerdal, Driva, Suddalslagen and Flam Rivers and the Malangsossen Pool offer the finest salmon fishing to be found anywhere.

Norwegian rivers hold more large salmon than any others in the world, but fishing is not as easy as in Monterey Bay, Labrador or the QUAINT WATERWAY — Godysund Hotel is situated on an island at the very entrance to the Hardanger fjord, a short trip south of Bergen — the Gateway to Norway's Fjord Country, part of the Scandinavian tour now being offered by Dick Phinney Travel Agency.

Columbia River. However, there is no other country in the fisherman's world where 30 pound salmon are common, and the list of Norwegian salmon exceeding 50 pounds would fill a book. Norway and all of Scandinavia can be reached by the tour now being offered by Dick Phinney Travel Agency. See ad below.

RLS MIDWAY—Carnival booths, designed to mulct dimes, quarters and other coin from the crowd, was an outstanding feature of the annual bazaar and auction held last Saturday at Robert Louis Stevenson School.

CONTEMPORARY ART BOOTH—The Spin Art booth at the RLS bazaar last week was one of the most popular attractions of the midway. Proceeds from the booths, all operated by students of RLS, will go into the RLS scholarship fund.

DURANCE VILE—You pay one quarter of a dollar and you can send anyone you designate, if the bailiffs can round them up, into the pokey for a designated period. Needless to say, members of the faculty and administration all made the scene. However, a buck would buy bail for this exalted social group, so the RLS scholarship fund was considerably richer at the end of the day.

REPORTS FROM RLS

By Peter Meckel

The annual bazaar and carnival is now a matter of record for the year 1969.

A wonderful, and somewhat deserved, spell of good weather provided the background for a full day of fun for students and friends of RLS.

A unanimous vote of thanks is in order for the unprecedented efforts of the women of the Sponsors' Club whose year-long planning resulted in such a wonderful event.

The weeks ahead are loaded with activities for the athletic teams, the chorus, the drama club, and, of course, for the seniors who are now excitedly awaiting news from the colleges to which they applied. To date, there are at least three Stanford men.

Baseball, track, swimming, tennis, and golf are all well under way and it appears that RLS is fielding some of the finest competitive teams in the school's history. The head coaches for the various squads are as follows:

Baseball, David Martula; track, Wallace B. Goodwin; swimming, Ned Cummings; tennis, Jack Waltz; and golf, Jim Heryer.

Anyone wishing a complete schedule of athletic contests may secure one by writing to Wallace Goodwin, in care of the school.

The chorus, under the direction of Larry Christiansen, is planning the major concert of the year — a combined effort with Santa Catalina School for Girls.

Two performances are scheduled for Mar. 23. The first is at 3:30 in Saint Louis Bertrand Hall at Santa Catalina and the second is to be held at 7:00 p.m. in the Erdman Memorial Chapel at the Stevenson campus.

Mrs. Rosemary Garrison reports that all is progressing very well for the drama club's presentation of Agatha Christie's "The Mousetrap." The performances are to be held at 8:15 p.m. on Friday, Mar. 21, and Saturday, Mar. 22.

It looks as though the house will be nearly filled with students on Friday and so we suggest that if possible, you make plans to attend Saturday. The production of this play has been a herculean task and both Mr. and Mrs. Garrison deserve the highest compliments for their untiring efforts.

Five Nominated For Hospital Board

Five Monterey Peninsula residents have been nominated for three-year terms on the Board of Trustees of Community Hospital.

Nominated as new members of the Board by a committee chaired by Col. Allen Griffin are Charles Chayne of Pebble Beach and James Murray of Monterey. They have been named to succeed J. O. Handley and Loren Smith, who have served two consecutive three-year terms and are ineligible for reelection at this time.

Nominated for their second terms on the Board are Mrs. John M. Marble of Carmel Valley, J. Arch Butts and Arthur C. Stewart both of Pebble Beach.

The election will take place at the annual meeting of the members of the hospital to be held 4 p.m. March 26 in the conference room of the hospital. At that time, further nominations may be made from the floor.

Librarian's Notebook

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg, City Librarian

So yuh wanta know about new books? Ladies and gentlemen, I tellya what I'm gonna do, I'm gonna describe to you seven new books just unpacked from a McNaughton box, which nobody on the library staff has read, and that includes me. But they are new. They look good. And you are the ones to hear about them first!

No. 1. In Touch is by John Steinbeck IV, who is the son of our John Steinbeck, and who is now 22 years of age and a writer in his own right, if you will forgive an inept turn of phrase. Here is a well-bred, well-trained young man who grew a beard on his clean young face, served his stint in Vietnam, smoked pot and got arrested and acquitted, and writes like his father, and if this is a generation gap, it's one we can all approve of. But the thing is that he speaks with young wisdom about the dropping out of youth today and what it means. I wish it had all been possible when I were his age!

No. 2 And to my nephew Albert I leave the island what I won off Fatty Hagan in a poker game . . . is a novel by David Forrest, and this is the pseud of two young writers each of which thinks the other is quite mad, or so they say. This is the craziest, funniest book of the year, so far. Worth reading for the laughs, but slightly ribald.

No. 3 Catherine Drinker Bowen writes of writing in her new book Biography, the Craft and the Calling. Mrs. Bowen has a string of successful biographies to her credit, and a credit to her is just what they are. If you yearn to write biography, read this, and learn to do it right.

No. 4 This book was written by three men who's names are Chesnoff, Klein, and Littell. The title of the book is If Israel Lost the War. All three authors are on the staff of Newsweek magazine, all three covered the war, and now they collaborate on a book which explores the hypothetical results which would have followed if the Arabs had launched a successful air attack against Israel. What do you think would have happened?

No. 5 The Secret War for Europe was written by Louis Hagen and is a collection of spy stories, all true.

No. 6 The FBI in Our Society is by Harry and Bonaro Overstreet. They discuss the establishment of the FBI, its development and what it has come to be in the lives of American citizens.

No. 7 This is a novel by John Bellairs and it is entitled The Face in The Frost. It begins like this, "Several centuries (or so) ago, in a country whose name doesn't matter, there was a tall, skinny, straggly-bearded old wizard named Prospero, and not the one you are thinking of, either. He lived in a huge, ridiculous, doodad-covered, trash-filled two-story horror of a house. . . ." You can go on from there. A good wizard story never hurt anyone.

Have You Seen the Rainbow?

By Pearl B. Harwood

Once on a time there was a pine wood on a steep hillside by the sea. There were dark green cypresses there too, and sweet smelling bushes, and pink and yellow flowers that liked the sea air and the sun and the fogs.

On a sunny day one May a tall man wearing blue jeans and a yellow plaid shirt came to the hillside. He smelled the pines and cypresses and the salty sea air and the bushes and the flowers. He heard the blue jays and the nuthatches talking from the trees. He looked upwards and saw the blue sky and white clouds through the branches. But a wisp of fog was creeping gently in from the ocean, and when the man sat down and watched, a rainbow appeared in the fog between him and the sea.

"Here is where I shall build my house," said the man. So he looked carefully about him to find a space between the trees large enough for a tiny cabin, for he wished not to disturb any tree for his own convenience. For walls and roof, he used logs already lying on the ground, or trimmed lower branches from trees growing too close together. For the floor, he brought cement from the valley, mixed it water from a spring and sand from the hillside, and patted it with a trowel so it would dry flat and smooth. Windows came from the valley—large so that he could see the ocean through the trees while he ate his simple meals by his fireside. Then he went about his business of painting pictures, for he was an artist.

Now the man owned this hillside, and before long others came to visit him. Saying that he had the nicest place to live in seven counties, they begged that he would sell them a plot of land so that they too could enjoy this paradise. And to all who came thus, the man asked one question.

"Have you seen a rainbow through the fog?"

And he would sell only to those who answered yes. For the trees had revealed to him a secret. Only those people who saw a rainbow through the fog would be kind and considerate of the trees, they told him. And woe be to that hillside if men came who were not in harmony with it.

As the years went on, a village grew up among the pines and cypresses. It was like no other village in the world, for the man who had once owned the whole hillside—his name was Giles—was its mayor, and certain rules of his must be put into the charter for ever and ever before he would allow them to make it a village at all.

Not a tree on the hillside might be cut down without the consent of the mayor and his council. Not a tree might be cut unless another should be planted immediately, within a space of thirty feet from that spot. Giles kept his secret well, and still tested all newcomers with the rainbow question before he would sell them a plot of land. And should anyone want to sell his land again, he must sell it back to Giles—that was the agreement, and no exceptions made.

Then Giles found himself a wife, a young girl who was an artist like himself. She appeared on a May morning, as he himself had done, and he saw her looking up at the pine trees as though asking them a question. The fog drifted in between the trees, and Giles said to her with a smile, "Do you see a rainbow through the fog?"

She turned around to him and smiled quietly. "I see two rainbows," she said. Then he knew that she was to be his wife.

They made the cabin larger, with windows that looked at the sunset over the sea; and windows that caught the sunrise as it came over the hills. The next year a son was born to them, on a day when fog was playing hide-and-seek among the trees in the sunshine, and three rainbows could be seen through the mist at one time. So they named him Bow.

As Bow grew, the Village grew, and likewise its fame. No one except Giles and his wife and little Bow knew that the secret of its charm was in the trees. They were up and down the main street, on both sides of it and in a strip of park in the middle.

So without knowing why, men built their shops with tall roofs reaching for the sky as the trees did. They made their shops cozy and rustic, befitting dwellings in the woods. In among the trees the shop windows glistened with all manner of things from far-away places; bells from Burma and China, brass fashioned in India, ivory from Africa, delicate oriental carvings and paintings and gowns with golden sheen.

The restaurants displayed in their windows paintings by Giles and other artists of the Village, paintings which showed the sea and sky and hillside in all its moods. Their walls also glowed with pictures, so that people came to feast their eyes more than to savor the food which they ate.

As more and more folk came to enjoy the atmosphere of this Village-by-the-sea, there came to be less room for their motor cars as they thronged up and down the main street and spread out into the side lanes. People must get out of their cars and walk uphill a way, to reach the shops. And no one minded as a rule.

But one man, rather large and fat and cross, with a very long car and a great deal of money in his pocket, did mind.

Bow was hiding behind a tree in a side lane when the man drove along and barely missed the tree's trunk as he parked.

"Trees!" muttered the fat man. "always trees!" He snapped his fingers. "Why can't they get modern around here and clear a little space for their visitors, even if they don't know enough to want it for themselves!" And he stomped out of his car and helped his wife, who was richly dressed and as fat as he.

Bow felt a shiver go up and down his spine. The sun went behind a cloud, a wind whipped up and a pine branch slapped against the man as he strode off toward the main street. The woman stumbled over a root, and would have turned her ankle had her husband not caught her by the air in time.

"That settles it!" he muttered. "I'm going to see the mayor of this town before I buy any property here!"

But of course he didn't buy any property, because Giles would not sell him any. Had he even seen a rainbow through the fog? Of course not—stuff and nonsense! But he could show Giles how to make a real town out of this backwoods dump. Nice modern buildings, square and solid, lots of parking, all the latest gadgets. He knew how to develop a place—just give him a chance.

Giles looked far away while the fat man was talking. Then he said politely, "I understand you, Mr. Gross. But this is not the place. What you need is a desert. Good day!"

Bow was still behind the pine tree when the two cross people returned. The man was muttering again. "Someday I'll come back," he threatened, shaking a fist toward the mayor's office, "and I'll show them how to fix up a town like this!" He started his motor. "Look out!" cried his wife. "Don't run into that tree!" He avoided it just in time, and turned noisily up the hill and out of Bow's sight.

Bow sat down weakly, on the bare ground. He was ten years old then, and he was never to forget the fat Mr. Gross and his ugly threat.

It was twenty years before Mr. Gross returned to the Village.

Bow was a married man, with a wife who could see rainbows through the fog, and a boy of his own who was born on a day then two double rainbows were visible to his parents as they looked out of their windows into the sun-drenched mist.

Bow's parents had died, and Bow was now mayor. He had kept the secret of the trees in his heart, telling it only to his wife and little son. Still no trees were cut in the Village without the consent of the council, and always the council let Bow decide what might be cut, and where and how, so as to preserve the trees in all their beauty and to replace the lost ones even before the cutting.

A new secret was given to the son of Bow, which not even his father or his grandfather had known. This child's name was Bowson, and his favorite place to dream was beneath a huge dark cypress tree which stood by itself on a high point out over the sea. One day as he lay there watching the surf pile over the rocks, a white misty shape drifted down from the tree above him and stood between him and the ocean.

"Who are you?" asked the boy, for he was not afraid.

"I am the spirit of this tree," whispered the face.

Bowson was entranced. "I always thought there must be such a one for every tree," he said. "But I never dared ask anyone."

"Only for the older trees," said the misty shape. "That is why you must plant a new one nearby, if you are to cut down an old tree. Then the tree's spirit can go into the young tree and have its home."

Then the shape was gone, leaving Bowson staring at the surf. The wind was blowing off-shore, and the white spray blew backwards from the crest of every wave. Long fingers of foam reminded him of what he had just witnessed on the land.

So Bowson knew why he must carry on his grandfather's rules for the trees, should he become mayor himself someday. That was why, when the fat Mr. Gross returned to the Village, Bowson was even more aware than his father of the danger which threatened.

As it happened, his father was in bed with an illness when Bowson answered the ringing of their string of camel bells by the cabin door. He knew Mr. Gross at once, for his father had told him often of that visit years ago, and had described him vividly. Except for gray hair and a little baldness he looked just as Bowson had imagined.

Have You Seen the Rainbow?

or," said Mr. Gross. "I don't suppose he's too sick to talk about a million dollars. Ha, ha!"

Bow had heard the voice before the man appeared in his doorway. "How do you do, Mr. Gross," he said politely from the bed. "My father has told me of you."

Mr. Gross looked amazed. "That was twenty years ago," he said shortly. "Your father was very stupid. I hope to find you more appreciative of the finer things of life."

"Meaning money?" asked Bow.

"Well, yes — the things money can do for your town, if you have any vision." Bowson was standing by the bed listening, and he saw his father wince and frown.

"I can put your town on the map!" snapped the fat man, banging his fist on the footboard. "Modernize it, clear out these pesky trees, widen the streets, build stores of up-to-date style. Attract the millionaires from New York."

"Why do you want to do all that here?" said Bow wearily.

"Because it's on the ocean, that's why. Slopes down to the water just right. People pay for such views. Only you have too many trees — spoils the whole thing. Now as I plan it..."

"No!" thundered the voice of Bow, startling even the boy with its sudden strength. "Please have the goodness to get out of here, and don't come back ever again with your filthy money!" And Bow lay back on the bed, closing his eyes as though in great pain.

"As daft as his father was," muttered Mr. Gross. "Well, you just have to figure some way to get around such people, that's what. The direct approach won't work with loonies. Ha, ha!" He walked alone to the front door and went out.

Bowson's mother saw him as she was coming to the house with her arms full of vegetables from their little garden. "What did that dreadful looking fat man want?" she asked Bowson.

The boy could not answer, but ran to his favorite spot by the ocean, threw himself down beneath the old cypress tree, and wept.

A few weeks passed. Bowson began to hope that Mr. Gross had found some other place in which to carry out his plans, and would leave their Village alone. His father was not so hopeful, for he had heard that the millionaire had bought the other side of the peninsula, and was planning a new town there not five miles away from them.

"If he'll only stay over there," he said to his wife, "and not infect any silly people over here with his ideas!" Bowson heard, and knew what his father meant.

Reports, however, began to come their way from down the peninsula. Tales of the wholesale destruction of trees, of a swath being cut, a mile wide straight down to the sea; of seven-story dwellings of twenty units each rising out the bare hillside created by Mr. Gross. He was working, they said, as though a hundred demons were after him. He was constructing huge stores, to attract the big merchants of the East. Trying to build a town from nothing, in a few short months.

At first the councilmen of the Village laughed at these antics. Then a few began to wonder: Was the fat man right, and would he take all the visitors away from them? Was their Village really old-fashioned, cluttered with trees, tied to a one-family rule that should have been ended long ago?

When such thoughts had barely begun to be whispered around the Village, Bow suddenly became so ill that he must resign as mayor. Bowson was but 12 years old. Who then would preserve the rule of the trees? Bowson's mother was the only person of suitable age who knew the secret.

She shrank from the thought, but bravely faced the council and asked to be put on in her husband's place, though she would not ask to be mayor.

"How now, my fair lady!" said the one who was already chosen by the council as the new mayor. "Did you think this was a monarchy, with the hereditary succession, and would you be regent for your son 'til he became of kingly age to rule?" The councillors laughed heartily at the joke, though privately each was sorry for her husband's great illness and would have comforted her.

"Well then," said the wife of Bow, greatly embarrassed, "there needs be no ruler, for the charter gives the laws for governing the Village. I beg of you, do not forget to follow the rules about the trees, for the very life of our Village depends upon them."

Again they laughed, and the new mayor showed her to the door. "Come visit us again when we are not so busy," he said affably. "We have important matters to discuss this day."

When Bowson found his mother crying at home, he guessed what caused her sorrow, though luckily he knew not how cruel the councillors had been or he might have rushed over to shout at them.

"I will grow up fast, Mother," he said, to comfort her. "Then they will put me on the council, and I will see that nothing goes wrong with the trees. But they must follow the charter, so do not worry."

What Bowson and his parents did not know was that the wily Mr. Gross had thought of a way to throw the old charter on the dust heap, by setting up a new form of government for the Village.

Once that was done, he aimed to get control of the council with his money, and add this Village to the empire he was building a few miles away.

But everything came to a head very quickly. One morning Bowson ran home to his mother with the dreadful news. The old rules were out. Anyone could cut down any tree — the more the better, some were saying. And the tallest pine on the main street, by the corner drugstore, was to come crashing down tomorrow! Mr. Gross was sending his men and machinery over to do the job.

Bowson's mother ran down to plead with the council, though she knew in her heart it would be no use. The boy ran to his refuge under the cypress tree by the sea. All day he stayed there, without food, and mourned, and prayed for some miracle to save the trees and their Village.

At night he pulled his coat over him and went to sleep at the foot of the tree, meaning to get up and go home after a short nap. But he slept soundly for several hours. Then he awoke, feeling shaken all over. The round moon was riding high above his cypress tree, and the tree was shaking. Underneath, the whole earth was moving. Then he knew.

"Earthquake," he said to himself, and felt less frightened. The heaving went on for a whole minute; then he heard a thunderous noise in the distance. A rumbling and a roaring that seemed to grow steadily louder; a sound as of timbers crashing from a great height; louder and louder — and then silence. And the earth became still, and the moon had passed his tree and shone out clear and full in the night sky.

He thought of his parents, and ran like a wild deer to their cabin. His mother was out looking for him, and they clung together in great relief for the safety of each other. Nothing was wrong with their house, nor any house nearby.

"Then what was the roaring and crashing noise?" said Bowson. "We must find out." They told Bow, then got into their old car and set off in the bright moonlight, his mother driving. They went up and down the streets and lanes of their Village. Not a brick was out of place nor a window jarred by the earthquake.

But people were up and about, asking what the great noise was. A few cars joined them, and soon the procession was taking the turn on the highway that led to the new town of Mr. Gross. A few minutes, and they were there. Or were they?

For there was no growing town on the hillside.

There was only a great gaping hole where the hill had broken off and slid down to the water, 200 feet below. At its base, a grand jumble of broken buildings, jutting out of the ocean, showed the remains of the new great town.

The people stood around in silence and awe for a time.

"Lucky no workmen were living on this job," said one man to another.

"Wouldn't be alive now if they had been," said the second.

They heard a shout then, from the further side of the gaping hole. Someone in white pajamas was high in a pine tree at the top of the landslide. Against the trunk of the tree was a cabin; collapsed.

All the cars drove around on the road to that place, and by the light of the moon they saw that the man in the pine tree was Mr. Gross. The new mayor threw him a rope, which he tied to his branch and then shinned down to safety.

"Narrow escape you had," said the mayor pleasantly.

"The tree kept your cabin from going downhill into the ocean," said Bowson's mother.

"You must have got out of the cabin and into the tree just before the cabin went to pieces," said Bowson.

"Everything you say is true," said Mr. Gross, who was still trembling. Someone gave him a coat to put on over his pajamas.

"Come home with us and I'll get you some hot coffee," said Bowson's mother. "It's a cool night to be out in tree tops."

"Thank you, Ma'am," said Mr. Gross very humbly, and got into the back seat.

Dawn was breaking as they reached home. Mr. Gross fell asleep on the living-room couch after his coffee, and slept until eight o'clock. Bowson did not like having their enemy under the same roof, but he was sorry for the man none the less. He slept too, after eating some sandwiches his mother made. When he awoke, their guest had gone.

"I suppose you gave him some breakfast, too," he said to his mother in disgust.

"Yes," said his mother. "I didn't want to, but I did."

And they began to listen for the sounds that would tell them that their beloved trees were beginning to fall. By noontime, no such sounds had come.

"Of course," said Bowson's mother. "Their machinery fell downhill into the ocean, too. They'll have to wait for some new machinery."

In the afternoon, all the men of the village council came to call. They asked to see Bow, and surprisingly, he was feeling better after the earthquake.

"It shook some of my sickness out of me," he laughed. "How is Mr. Gross, after his excursion into the tree?"

"Mr. Gross has returned to New York," said the new mayor. "He seems to have changed his mind about a number of things, since a tree saved his life. And — er — so have we."

"So?" said Bow.

"We see that we had forgotten what our Village owes to the trees," said the mayor. "And lest we forget again, we ask that your wife act as our mayor until you feel able to take up your duties once more — which we hope will be soon."

So that was settled, and inside of a year Bow was back at his job and a well man.

Many years later, Bowson himself became mayor. But all that time the Village kept on growing beneath the trees, and its fame spread more widely than ever as it became more interesting and ever more charming to behold. For the gracious life of the trees was within it and all through it, molding its character and shaping its destiny.

cate, written and signed by the arbitrators favoring the same, and shall be attached to and become a part of this agreement; provided, further, however, that either party may before invoking the provisions of this paragraph, submit the matter in controversy to a court of competent jurisdiction, in which event this paragraph will not apply.

25. INCORPORATION: That in case the Pebble Beach Sanitary District should become a municipal corporation, then such municipal corporation will succeed to all the rights, privileges, duties, and obligations devolving upon the Pebble Beach Sanitary District under law; provided nothing herein contained shall be deemed to absolve the Pebble Beach Sanitary District from continuing payment of its share of the cost of maintaining and operating the common system, so long as it shall be used by said District; provided, further, that in the event of such incorporation, as aforementioned, nothing herein contained will be deemed to prevent the parties hereto from entering into a supplementary agreement as hereinafter provided.

26. APPLICATION FOR FEDERAL GRANT FOR SEWAGE TREATMENT WORKS UNDER TITLE 33 OF THE UNITED STATES CODE: Both Districts agree to prepare and submit separate applications for Federal Grants for Sewage Treatment Works under Title 33 of the United States code wherein said work is undertaken as a "JOINT PROJECT" with the Carmel Sanitary District as the "Central Agency" and the Pebble Beach Sanitary District is the "Tributary Agency".

List Your Lot With Lois—

The Reason?

It's The Season!

IT HAS BECOME TRADITIONAL FOR REAL ESTATE BY THE SEA to publish each year a collection of interesting building sites. We choose the springtime for many reasons — because human beings, like the birds, think of building new nests in the spring. Also, Spring is truly a time of new beginnings, a good time to plan for a new home, especially in this area which is so lovely at this season.

IF YOU HAVE CONSIDERED SELLING YOUR LOT, we would be happy to give it maximum exposure by including it with this year's collection. Building costs are going up. Money is still tight and interest rates are high on construction loans. Perhaps you need our professional help in this kind of market to find your buyer.

WE FEEL FORTUNATE THAT OUR PARTICULAR CLIENTELE is not so much affected by these factors as the average. Our buyers often pay cash for their lots and can build without dependence upon maximum financing.

THE BLOTTER

by c.r. bee

On Saturday night a 1959 Volvo belonging to George Souza, Santa Fe and 2nd, was stripped of just about everything that could be unscrewed, unbolted or otherwise lifted.

The car was parked in front of Souza's home, and the thieves started with the tail lights and stripped the gas cap, rear window knobs, dome light, brake and gas pedals, ash trays, radio, gear shift knob, seatbelts and head and parking lights.

On Monday, Officer Del Wermuth, serving a traffic warrant at 3:30 p.m., checked out three subjects, two women and a man, at the address on the warrant. The man, Jan Dennis Ryan of West Covina, had only a driver's license for identification.

When asked for his draft card, he said he didn't believe in the draft and had thrown his card away. He also said that he was supposed to have reported for Army duty in December. Ryan was turned over to the FBI.

Later that day, about 6:45 p.m., Officer Pete Koenen saw vehicle lights on the beach. When he started walking toward the car, the lights went out. He found a Seaside man in the car, who admitted he knew it was wrong to drive on the beach, and didn't know why he did such a stupid thing.

The escapade earned him a citation for driving on the beach and for not having a registration card in the vehicle. By this time the car was stuck up to the axle in the sand, and the ocean was washing around the body. A tow car pulled him out, and he had to pay for that, too.

Incidentally, the Animal Control Officer of the Carmel Police Department has been especially busy lately enforcing the Leash Law in Carmel's business district. You better keep your dog on a leash or it may wind up at the pound.
